An adventurous full day on the Savegre River, with more than 20 rapids in a spectacular setting in the tropical rain forest. Savegre is the rafters dream; natural whitewater, challenging rapids and crystal clear pools. Enjoy the natural splendor and abundant wildlife. Great bird watching.

Along the way you will be astounded by the awesome canyons, waterfalls, and primary rainforest of Costa Rica. The Savegre river is a magnificent stretch of whitewater that begins its course by winding out of a sparsely inhabited valley in the mountains. This is one of the most pristine rivers in the country, and is surrounded by impressive views of the primary rainforest. Lurking just behind the shroud of lush foliage, you will find a number of truly magnificent waterfalls of the Savegre's tributaries. At the full day savegre river rafting you will visit a waterfall and get to explore the natural swimming pools in the area surrounded by blooming heliconias.

WHAT TO BRING: Tennis or teva-style shoes that you don't mind getting wet, bathing suit, camera with ziplock waterproof bag, sun block, rain shell and a complete change of warm, dry clothes to change into after rafting.

Manuel Antonio National Park

Tropical Rainforest Experience

About Manuel Antonio National Park:

Manuel Antonio National Park is Costa Rica's smallest national park, just over 683 hectares, but it is also one of the most amazing, famous and visited ones. Here you will find a small-forested area heavily populated by White Faced and Howler monkeys and raccoons, and three exceptionally beautiful beaches. Also it is one of the few remaining areas in which the squirrel monkey is found. Trails pass through secondary and primary forest, dominated by bastard cedar, balsa and mangrove swamps. The beaches are covered with coconut palms, a truly unique tropical paradise.

Spend the first half of a day in the park with a Nature Guide from ASOGUINAMA (Manuel Antonio National Park Naturalist Guide Association). $39 per person - includes park entrance, bilingual nature guide with telescope, fruits, water and natural fruit drinks. Park opens early (8 am) and it is recommended to go early in the morning so you can see more wildlife, such as monkeys, sloths, tropical birds, iguanas, and all kinds of fauna you never knew existed. There is a very nice viewpoint and rest area (which is worth the hike). Follow the signs that say Sendero Mirador. Park is closed on Mondays. You can hire guides at the park entrance, and you may be able to get a better rate if you hire a guide at the park entrance.

You can visit the park on your own ($10 entrance fee), and approach a group to listen in on what the guides are saying or looking at wildlife.

What should you bring?

- CAMERA (and a zip lock plastic bag for your camera to protect it from the mist and rain)
- Comfortable walking shoes (preferably with a thick tread for hiking the trails)
- Bathing suit, towel or sarong, shorts or light weight pants (bring an extra pair of shorts in case you get really wet)
- Lightweight jacket, plastic poncho or raincoat/shell (small travel umbrellas are good in case of downpours)
